The German Yearbook of International Law, founded as the ›Jahrbuch für Internationales Recht‹, provides an annual report on new developments in international law and is edited by the Walther Schücking Institute for International Law at the Kiel University. Since its inception in 1948, the Yearbook has endeavored to make a significant academic contribution to the ongoing development of international law. Over many decades the Yearbook has moved beyond its origins as a forum for German scholars to publish their research and has become a highly-regarded international forum for innovative scholarship in international law.

Vol. 64 (2021) of the German Yearbook of International Law confronts a number of pressing issues from recent years. The yearbook's forum section considers the prospect of the development of an WHO treaty on pandemic preparedness and response, while the focus section provides expert analysis on a variety of issues relating to China's engagement with international law. Peer reviewed articles run a wide gamut of issues and topics including the human rights issues relating to the Moria refugee camp, regional approaches to international law, intra-EU investor-State arbitration, and pandemic notification obligations in global health law. The yearbook's German practice section rounds out this volume with analyses of a wide variety of compelling developments relating to Germany's international legal obligations with regards to human rights in business, State building, climate change, post-conflict reconciliation, international criminal justice, and so on.
